In Woman's Realm.

Never let soup boil. Do not salt it until the scum has been taken off, as it prevents the latter from rising.

A cupful of boiled rice may be added to your breakfast muffins, waffles or pancakes, making them lighter, more easily digested and more palatable.

In beating the whites of eggs, save time by putting them and the dish in which they are to be beaten where they will be thoroughly cold. A few grains of salt added also shortens the beating process.

Strength is the one great good life has to offer, but like most desirable things, there is no royal road to it. Sometimes it is only to be gained in devious pathways which appear to lead in quite another direction. Study your children. Thus only will you be able to stake out their particular routes to health. Learn the strengthening power of cold water, outdoor exercise, sleep in a cool, dark room, early bed hours and simple meals. Do not send for a doctor as each sneeze or live with a clinical thermometer in your hands.

Charming Scarfs.

The loveliest scarfs of spangled silk are priced so moderately that few women will resist the temptation to buy them.

Exquisite scarfs in delicate shades of yellow, pink, blue and mauve showered with mock dewdrops and trimmed on the ends with a deep fringe can be bought very reasonably.

These are airy looking, but should something more substantial be preferred they could be lined with a soft silk such as China, and would not lose their attractiveness. The Persian scarfs in the rich soft colorings, trimmed with natural marabou, are equally attractive. The prices for them are about the same as the spangled models.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good."

It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures. Ask Your Neighbors. They probably know of some of its many cures.

If you want a book that tells all about women's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers, in handsome cloth-binding, 31 stamps. beautiful undertones of love. And this will give to them an enjoyment that a woman without this melody in her life does not know.

If one is becoming discontented with domestic life because it seems narrow and monotonous, it is because one is making it narrow and monotonous. Open the doors and windows and let the hum of the outside world in. Go out into the world as far as you may, into its life. Do not be all domestic, nor all worldly. ### Magazine Review

What the Future May Bring Forth.

As a simple matter of fact, when old Cartwright came to the end of the great research institute which he had founded had just begun the wonderful work in surgical grafting which now makes it possible if no longer legal—to prolong human life indefinitely. It is, to be sure, true that in his ninety-sixth year, his right arm being entirely crippled with rheumatism, he found a lusty young emigrant to whom a hundred thousand dollars was full recompense for the loss of everything below his right elbow. But that was one of the first cases of limb grafting on the human subject and though it was on the whole successful, it had some curious and embarrassing results. The muscles of that new and illiterate right arm had to be trained to write. Once the trick had been mastered and bank cashiers had become familiar with the revised signature the new right hand showed an alarming willingness to sign checks, which required a constant watchfulness on the part of its present owner. Heretofore Cartwright had been distinguished by a suave and cautious diplomacy in dealing with those who attacked him. Now, when provocation offered, the bellicose right hand doubled itself up, threateningly, and Cartwright earned a new reputation as a man of dominating, not to say, violent manner.

It was also truthfully recorded that when the sight of Cartwright's left eye became obscured, the corner of a rabbit cleared the world for him. Otherwise he died as he was born—so far as his physical make-up is concerned—except for the cellular changes, which, in the natural course of life, make a man over every seven years.—From "The Great Gift of Work," in December Technical World Magazine.

The Blindness of the "Standpatters."

The November American Magazine contains an article by Ray Stannard Baker on the Insurgent Movement and Its Leaders. Mr. Baker, who undoubtedly is the closest political observer writing to-day, says that the growth and power of the insurgents is far underestimated. He writes:

"A most remarkable movement is this. Last winter a 'standpatter' from Iowa told Senator Clapp that the insurgents couldn't do anything in Iowa while pork was selling at $11 a hundred. 'We'll come out and discuss that matter later with you,' said Senator Clapp.

"It is strange, indeed, how little the so-called standpatters appreciate the real depth and seriousness of this movement. This is no 'hunger strike.' This is the revolt of a prosperous and happy people—richer than they ever were before—people who are riding in automobiles and living better than any people ever lived before. It is the well-considered, determined moral revolt of an intelligent and prosperous people. And he who will not or cannot see the signs in the skies is blind indeed.

"Movements may be gauged by the attitude of the half-believers—all that crowd of timid souls which awaits the crushing arguments of success. In the middle West at least, the half-believers are now in full cry after the new leadership, some of them even claiming that the new views are exactly what they have always entertained and earnestly supported. Of a truth the old notions are disappearing into the limbo of discarded beliefs, and old leaders are yielding to the energetic elbowing of a new generation. In short, the progressive movement has found itself."

The Exploded Fiction Called Aldrich.

Ray Stannard Baker, writing in the November American Magazine on the present political situation, says that Aldrich's knowledge, learning and sagacity are like bursted soap bubbles. He writes:

"I think there was never in our history a fiction more thoroughly exploded than the fiction called Aldrich. Everyone had imputed to Aldrich an almost supernatural sagacity. The insurgents themselves dreaded him; but under the fire of Dilliver, Cummins, Beveridge and La Follette, he exploded, dried up, and blew away.

"For downright mastery, indeed, of all the arts of the new oratory no man in our public life to-day excels Dilliver of Iowa. For years Dilliver has been in public life. He is a large-natured man of rather indolent mentality. For years he was willing to be a follower of Allison and the group that ruled the party; and it is only within the last two years that he has begun to awaken. There are natures which require a powerful incentive—a burr under the tail! they say in Iowa—to drive them to great action.

Dilliver refused to take Aldrich seriously. He played with him. He tossed him and twisted him about. Once he began to laugh at a shaft and, whiff! it vanishes in thin air. Read Dilliver's speeches and see with what mock respect he treats the senior senator from Rhode Island, at the same time showing with irresistible irony how his assumed knowledge of the tariff is taken in undigested lumps from the experts of the protected interests of the East. Dilliver said on the floor of the Senate: 'I used to have an almost superstitious awe of the encyclopedic character of his (Mr. Aldrich's) information about these matters,' and told how he had been shocked to discover, in the course of the debate, that Aldrich had never even read the estimated revenue book which his committee had issued!

"It came to pass finally that when Dilliver spoke Aldrich would leave his chair and fly to the lobby. I find this amusing passage in the Congressional Record—showing how Aldrich was once detained in spite of himself:

"Mr. Dilliver. Now take another matter. I am as anxious to honor the senator from Rhode Island as any man in this chamber. Thirty years ago, in Rhode Island and everywhere, I carried in my satchel his speeches upon the tariff question and recited his statistics with a certain confidence, which, I confess, without any fault of my own, has gradually slipped away from my mind.

"I hope the senator from Rhode Island will remain here for a few minutes.

"Mr. Aldrich. I am engaged elsewhere.

"Mr. Dilliver. I want to engage you here.

"Mr. Aldrich. All right."

Famous "Pint of Cough Syrup" Recipe

No Better Remedy at Any Price.
Fully Guaranteed.

Make a plain syrup by mixing one pint of granulated sugar and ½ pint of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of pure Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the sugar syrup. This gives you a family supply of the best cough syrup, at a saving of $2. It never spoils. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

The effectiveness of this simple remedy is surprising. It seems to take hold instantly, and will usually stop the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. It tones up the jaded appetite and is just laxative enough to be helpful in a cough and has a pleasing taste. Also excellent for bronchial trouble, throat tickle, sore lungs and asthma, and an unequalled remedy for whooping cough.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and sugar syrup (or strained honey) is a prime favorite in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, though never successfully. If you try it, use only genuine Pinex, which is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in gualic acid and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this recipe.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

FOOD PRICES FICTITIOUS

Prof. Wiley, Chief of Chemistry Bureau

SAYS ALLEGED REDUCTIONS

Says Alleged Reductions in Food Prices Are Due to Manipulation—New York Dealers Give Color to Charge.

Washington, Nov. 17.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry, fired a large projectile at the so-called decrease in prices yesterday. He declared it was fictitious and temporary, and due to manipulation by big interests.

"The interests have temporarily loosened their holds on our throat in order to get a fresh grip," declared Dr. Wiley. "The same interests that manipulated the market upward are now trying to manipulate it downward. The so-called reduction in prices is fictitious. If you disagree with that statement go to the markets there and you will get verification. The interests in Chicago will not permit Washington markets to sell below certain fixed prices. If the keeper of a market here does sell below these fixed prices he is cut off from the list."

"The interests are trying to drive some one from cover. When they succeed in their purpose prices will go up again."

Full bins of corn and oats have had much to do with the fall in meat prices in the opinion of Secretary of Agriculture John Wilson.

"The present break in prices," said Secretary Wiley, in discussing the reports of various cities, "is hardly a normal market development."

"While it is true that we should expect a downward trend of prices because of the great crops of corn and oats we have had, the present sudden drop in meats is too pronounced to be an effect from that cause altogether. I believe the drought in the southwest and the consequent shortage and high price of hay are responsible for an unusual movement of produce to market."

"It's too soon after election to connect politics with the decline of prices. The country is full of corn and oats; that's the reason fundamentally for a lowering of prices."

TOLSTOI'S LUNGS ARE AFFECTED

"Creeping Inflammation," the Doctors Say—Temperature Drops From 103 to 98.

Astapova, Russia, Nov. 17.—His physicians yesterday afternoon diagnosed Count Leo Tolstoy's illness as creeping inflammation of the lungs. The condition of the aged author is critical, but not hopeless. He experienced an increased temperature during the night, but late yesterday the doctors said that his temperature had fallen to 98.6.

An earlier bulletin issued by his physicians stated that Count Tolstoy had a temperature of 103.04 during the night. It was first reported that the aged novelist had experienced an attack of leucopneumonia.

It is said that the countess wished to remove her husband on a special train from Astapova, where he is lodged in the hut of the railway station master, to Yasnaya Polyana, but that he refused to return to the home which he left voluntarily to seek solitude elsewhere.

HOME MARKET CLUB RUMSPUS.

Trouble Over Speaker Walker's Resolution.

Boston, Nov. 17.—By a vote of 37 to 5 the Home Market club, a leading high protectionist organization allied with the Republican party, went on record yesterday as favoring a suspension of all tariff agitation until the investigations being made by the tariff board are completed.

Speaker Walker was thus voted down twice—once, by a vote of 440 to 8, on the question of substitution, and again, by a vote of 37 to 5, on the main question of which resolution, his or Mr. Hill's, should be adopted as the position of the club.

This section was taken only after one of the largest and liveliest meetings which the Home Market club has ever held. George Draper and William Whitman had tried to apply the "gag rule" to Speaker Walker by moving the previous question, declaring that Mr. Walker had already spoken four times, that they were sick of him, and did not want to hear any more from him. Wiser counsels from cooler heads, however, prevailed, and Mr. Walker was given the "one minute" for which he asked to warn the members that, if his resolution failed of adoption, the public would construe the club's action as that of going on record against President Taft.

SHOOTING UP TOWN.

Outlaws Reported in Possession of Oil City, Pa.

Shreveport, La., Nov. 17.—Following the shooting yesterday afternoon of Thomas T. Hickey, the alleged leader of a gang of bootleggers by Deputy Sheriff Kelley at Oil City, 20 miles north of here, Hickey's sympathizers gathered in large numbers and began shooting up the town.

It is reported that a mob of 75 armed men now have possession of the town. Officers were rushed to Oil City in automobiles from Shreveport.

The Value of Proprietary Medicine

is proven by the very large percentage of physicians' prescriptions for same remedies found in every drug store in America, but as they are written in Latin few patients realize this fact.

The old standard proprietary medicines like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that have stood the test of time, deserve a place in every family medicine chest, and it is most certain they would not be prescribed by physicians if they were able to devise a formula equally as efficacious.

Fresh Air in Winter

In winter, it is hard to get fresh air in certain rooms. Some rooms in a house are usually colder than others, and if you open the windows it is hard again to heat the room properly. If you keep the windows closed you don't get fresh air; if you keep them open you cannot quickly reheat the room. The

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless solves the difficulty. You can leave the windows in a room open all day in winter, and when you close them apply a match to a Perfection Oil Heater and heat the room to any temperature you desire in a few minutes.

The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in japan or nickel. It burns for nine hours. It has a cool handle and a damper top. It has an automatic locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be quickly cleaned. An indicator always shows amount of oil in the font. The filler-cap does not need to be screwed down. It is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and consequently, it can always be easily unscrewed in an instant for reworking. The Perfection Oil Heater is strong, durable, well made, built for service, yet light and ornamental.
